why the doc value is null then how we can get our xml data. Can you please specify the code you are talking about? If you are referring to "return null" in convertStringToDocument method, please note that it will be only in case of any exception.. You can use replaceAll("\n\r", "") to remove new line characters from String and get it in compact format.. We will use Transformer, StringWriter and StreamResult for this purpose. When we run above program, we get the same String output that we used to create DOM Document.

The variable doc always return null. Sridhar Raj says. Please check the method carefully, that's only in case of an exception..

getInstance()// static String styleSheetPath = null;static java util logging Logger logger = Loggerprivate static Document xml2FO(Document xml, String styleSheetPath)DOMSource xmlDomSource = new DOMSource(xml);DOMResult domResult = new DOMResult();Transformer transformer = getTransformer(styleSheetPath);if (transformer == null)throw new Exception("Error in creating trnasformer");catch (javax.

Any help is highly appreciated Please post your code and exception stack trace Where is the replaceAll() method supposed to be used? I was thinking it should be placed on the string str before printing it out, like so: String str = convertDocumentToString(doc); But the output doesn't change...
